Doctor of Economics Degree Program for International Students

The Graduate School of Economics of Hitotsubashi University admits a limited number of applicants from outside Japan. Applicants must be highly motivated, and have professional experience and a strong background in Economics. For consideration for admission, interested applicants should follow the Admissions Office system selection (AO selection) procedure. AO selection is for students whose academic research is motivated by real-world economic problems. As well as demonstrating evidence of well-rounded MA-level preparation in Economics or closely related field, applicants are expected to submit a detailed proposal for doctoral research that aims to make a substantive contribution to the field. If admitted, applicants are expected to work closely with supervisors and faculty to complete all degree requirements within three years. As the program is largely research based, we emphasize the need for proven research skills and a solid grounding in Economics.

Please read this information carefully before preparing the application package. We strongly recommend that prospective applicants contact us before submitting their applications to confirm whether they are eligible to apply for the program.

Admissions

Admission is open twice a year: spring registration (which is the standard procedure) and autumn registration.

Spring registration

To be eligible for admission to the doctoral program for the April 2018 - March 2019 academic year, the applicant must be a citizen of a country other than Japan and, by March 31, 2018, hold a Master's degree or its equivalent in a relevant field from a university outside Japan of recognized standing. In addition, an applicant who holds a Master's degree from Hitotsubashi University's Asia Public Policy Program, School of International and Public Policy (APPP) is eligible for admission.

Autumn registration

To be eligible for admission to the doctoral program starting in the autumn (mid-September) of 2018, the applicant must be a citizen of a country other than Japan and, by July 31, 2018, hold a Master's degree or its equivalent in a relevant field from a university outside Japan of recognized standing. In addition, an applicant who already holds a Master's degree or is expected to receive one from the APPP by July 31, 2018 is eligible for admission. Acceptance of a current student of the APPP program shall be conditional on successfully receiving the Master's degree prior to the enrollment.

Application Form and Supporting Documents: The application package must include the following items, with the exception of the TOEFL score (4), which the applicant should arrange to have sent directly to the Graduate School of Economics office by the testing organization.

- (1) Completed and signed application form with 3 identical photographs of 30 x 40 mm, either B&W or color (photo size should be strictly observed).
- (2) Certificate(s) of Master's degree issued by an accredited university. Current students of the APPP program who wish to be enrolled from the autumn of 2018 should submit a Certificate of Enrollment issued by the Director of the Program. In addition, upon admission, they should submit the Master's degree Certificate issued by the University without delay.
- (3) Official transcript(s) sealed in envelope(s) from the registrar(s) of all post-secondary institutions attended. Current students of the APPP should also include their most recent transcript from the APPP.

Applicants who have not graduated with a degree from a country where English is the main language spoken must have a TOEFL- iBT score of over 92 (for TOEFL-PBT over 580), or submit other documents that prove competence in academic English. The TOEFL score must be official and should be mailed directly to the Graduate School of Economics, Hitotsubashi University (TOEFL Institution Code 0436. Graduate School of Economics Department code 84). In addition to the official TOEFL score, applicants should submit a photocopy of the TOEFL score report. TOEFL score reports must be dated January 1, 2016 or later. An applicant who already holds a Master's degree or is expected to receive one from the APPP is exempt from this requirement.
- (5) Letters of recommendation. Applicants must submit at least one recommendation letter. Each letter should be in a sealed envelope and signed across the seal. References should come from persons who have been directly responsible for assessing the applicant's academic performance. Two or more references are desirable. Current students of the APPP who wish to be enrolled from the autumn of 2018 should submit at least one recommendation letter from the current faculty of the Program.
- (6) Research Proposal: This must be word-processed, double-spaced and not more than 20 pages in A4 or US letter size. The proposal should include (1) the questions the candidate proposes to answer. The importance of the research should be addressed through (2) a brief review of the literature most relevant to the study. This should indicate opportunities for a major, original contribution. The proposal must also include (3) a description of the data to collect and (4) the proposed methodology appropriate to the research. A reference list (5) should be provided. The proposal should conclude with (6) a three year timeline for achieving major objectives in reading, data collection, drafting, reporting, writing and submission. An indication of the resources the candidates expect to need for the research may also be included.
- (7) Samples of the applicant's work that demonstrate preparedness for undertaking and writing doctoral level research. For example, any working papers, discussion papers, term papers, and/or Master's thesis can be submitted if they are considered useful for assessing research or language competence.

The prospectus must identify a feasible and relevant research agenda. Candidates must also have taken for credit and passed at least one lecture course at the Graduate School of Economics.

Prior to registering for the 3rd Year:

Before submitting the Dissertation, candidates must have made at least two presentations in their supervisor's seminar workshops. Candidates will be expected to report their progress at regular meetings with their supervisors.

During the 3rd Year:

Submission and Defense of Dissertation: The completed Dissertation must be submitted to the faculty committee of the Graduate School of Economics.
